The Editorial Board and the authors of the manuscript: A Randomized, Double-Blind, Active Control Trial of Fluoroscopic Cervical Interlaminar Epidural Injections in Chronic Pain of Cervical Disc Herniation: Results of a 2-Year Follow-Up (Pain Physician 2013;16;465-478) wish to thank Dr. Vikram Patel for indicating the following typographical errors in the manuscript named above.

In Fig. 1 the text for group one has been corrected to read "cervical epidural."

The text describing Table 3 on page 471, has been clarified by clearly stating that all numbers refer to procedures for 2 years.

In the abstract, a clarification was added to indicate that the average procedures were per two years and not one year.

And finally, in the Abstract conclusion, the text has been changed to read cervical epidural injections with local anesthetic with or without steroids.
